

Abstract

A textile material has a base structure (10) and a functional layer (18) supported by this latter. This 5 functional layer comprises material (22) which glides over the skin with a low degree of friction.

(Figure 2).

Patented by the French Republic